

Caution Stifles UK Rural Investment

London – May 26, 2016 - MSCI Inc. (NYSE: MSCI) has recorded a total return of 5.5% in 2015 in IPD UK Annual Rural Property Index.

The 2015 total return, which was a decline from the total return of 10.4% in 2014, is the most subdued return since 2008 and reflected a market cooling after several years of very robust returns in line with other investment classes. Sentiment was tempered by weakening commodity prices, and more recently by political discussions around Britain exiting the European Union.

This caution around future market uncertainty was most reflected in rural land capital growth, which slowed to 4.1% in 2015 from 8.9% in 2014. This marked the lowest growth since 2008 when values depreciated. The decrease in the rate of capital growth contributed the most to the decline in the total return.

The restraint in capital value growth was most pronounced in South East, where growth declined to 5.8% from 17.9% in 2014. There was also significant moderation in capital value growth across Eastern England, East Midlands, and Yorkshire and Humberside regions. Northern England and Scotland recorded the slowest value growth at 1.1%.

Rural Income return, however, held relatively steady at 1.3% compared to 1.4% in 2014.

Colm Lauder, Vice President, MSCI, commented: “The weakened investment performance suggests confidence in the land market is cooling down after years of great returns.

“Moreover, the uncertainty created by discussion over Brexit and the potential effect of such a move on agri-food exports hit the confidence of farmers to increase rental holdings or invest further.”

Lauder explained: “Investors were concerned that it will be some time before there is a clear picture for the agricultural economy.”

The IPD UK Annual Rural Property Index tracks the performance of 1,873 properties with a capital value of more than 3 billion pounds. The Index is sponsored by Carter Jonas and Savills.

MSCI also recorded a total return of 10.8% in 2015 in the IPD UK Annual Forestry Index, which marked a decline from a total return of 18.6% in 2014. The total return in 2015 was the most subdued return since 2008. The decline is despite healthy demand for timber and wood products. However, a strengthened pound sterling versus euro and Scandinavian currencies put British wood products at a disadvantage in export markets.

British timber is heavily dependent on the exchange rate value of the pound. The significant gap between euro- and Swedish Krona-denominated import prices and home grown prices denominated in the British pound narrowed significantly, which rendered Scandinavian exported sawn timber more competitive in 2015.

Consequently, imports from mainland Europe rose at the expense of UK timber growers, whose timber sale returns in turn declined due to weakening saw-log prices. Subsequently the medium term run of forestry property price returns were impacted as investors and analysts made the adjustment.

Lauder explained: “The total return from UK Forestry of almost 11% is comparatively strong in the context of other assets classes; and indeed compared to UK Rural Land, Forestry continues to be an effective land-based asset to provide an alternative home for cash deposits in times of low interest rates and a good mechanism to hedge against volatility and inflation.

“Additionally, in times of political and economic uncertainty, the hedging nature of rural and forestry is likely to pique interest in the sector.”

The IPD UK Annual Forest Index tracked the performance of 123 properties across England, Scotland, and Wales. The Index is sponsored by FIM, Forestry Commission, Fountains, Highfield Forestry limited, Scottish Woodland, Stellar, and TilHill Forestry.

It is not possible to invest directly in an index. Exposure to an asset class or trading strategy or other category represented by an index is only available through third party investable instruments (if any) based on that index. MSCI does not issue, sponsor, endorse, market, offer, review or otherwise express any opinion regarding any fund, ETF, derivative or other security, investment, financial product or trading strategy that is based on, linked to or seeks to provide an investment return related to the performance of any MSCI index (collectively, "Index Linked Investments"). MSCI makes no assurance that any Index Linked Investments will accurately track index performance or provide positive investment returns. MSCI Inc. is not an investment adviser or fiduciary and MSCI makes no representation regarding the advisability of investing in any Index Linked Investments.

Index returns do not represent the results of actual trading of investible assets/securities. MSCI maintains and calculates indexes, but does not manage actual assets. Index returns do not reflect payment of any sales charges or fees an investor may pay to purchase the securities underlying the index or Index Linked Investments. The imposition of these fees and charges would cause the performance of an Index Linked Investment to be different than the MSCI index performance.

The Information may contain back tested data. Back-tested performance is not actual performance, but is hypothetical. There are frequently material differences between back tested performance results and actual results subsequently achieved by any investment strategy.

Constituents of MSCI equity indexes are listed companies, which are included in or excluded from the indexes according to the application of the relevant index methodologies.
